Project Idea

Students often struggle with:

- Time management
- Productivity
- Task organization
- Focus during studying
- Grade tracking

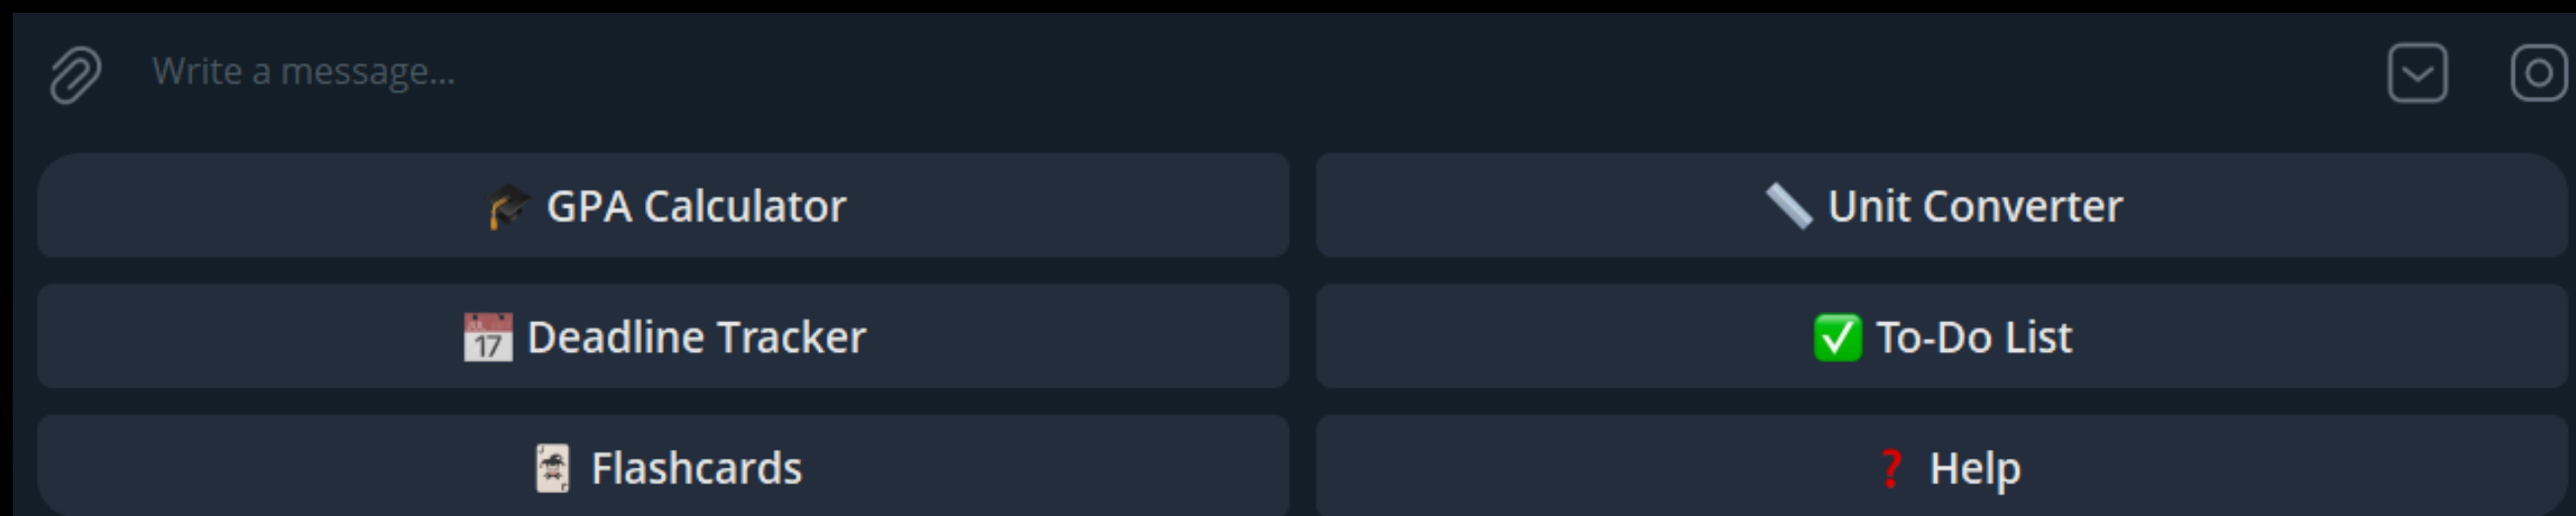

Solutions:

- GPA calculator
- Unit converter
- Deadline tracker
- To-do list
- Flashcards

How it functions

1. A user opens the bot and sends /start — that's the entry point into the whole system.
2. The chatbot responds with the main menu, which has all the tools laid out as buttons.
3. The user picks a feature and the bot handles it.

Deadline Tracker

Add deadlines with a name and date, view all of them in one list, and remove them when done. Everything stays in one place so you don't forget what's coming up.

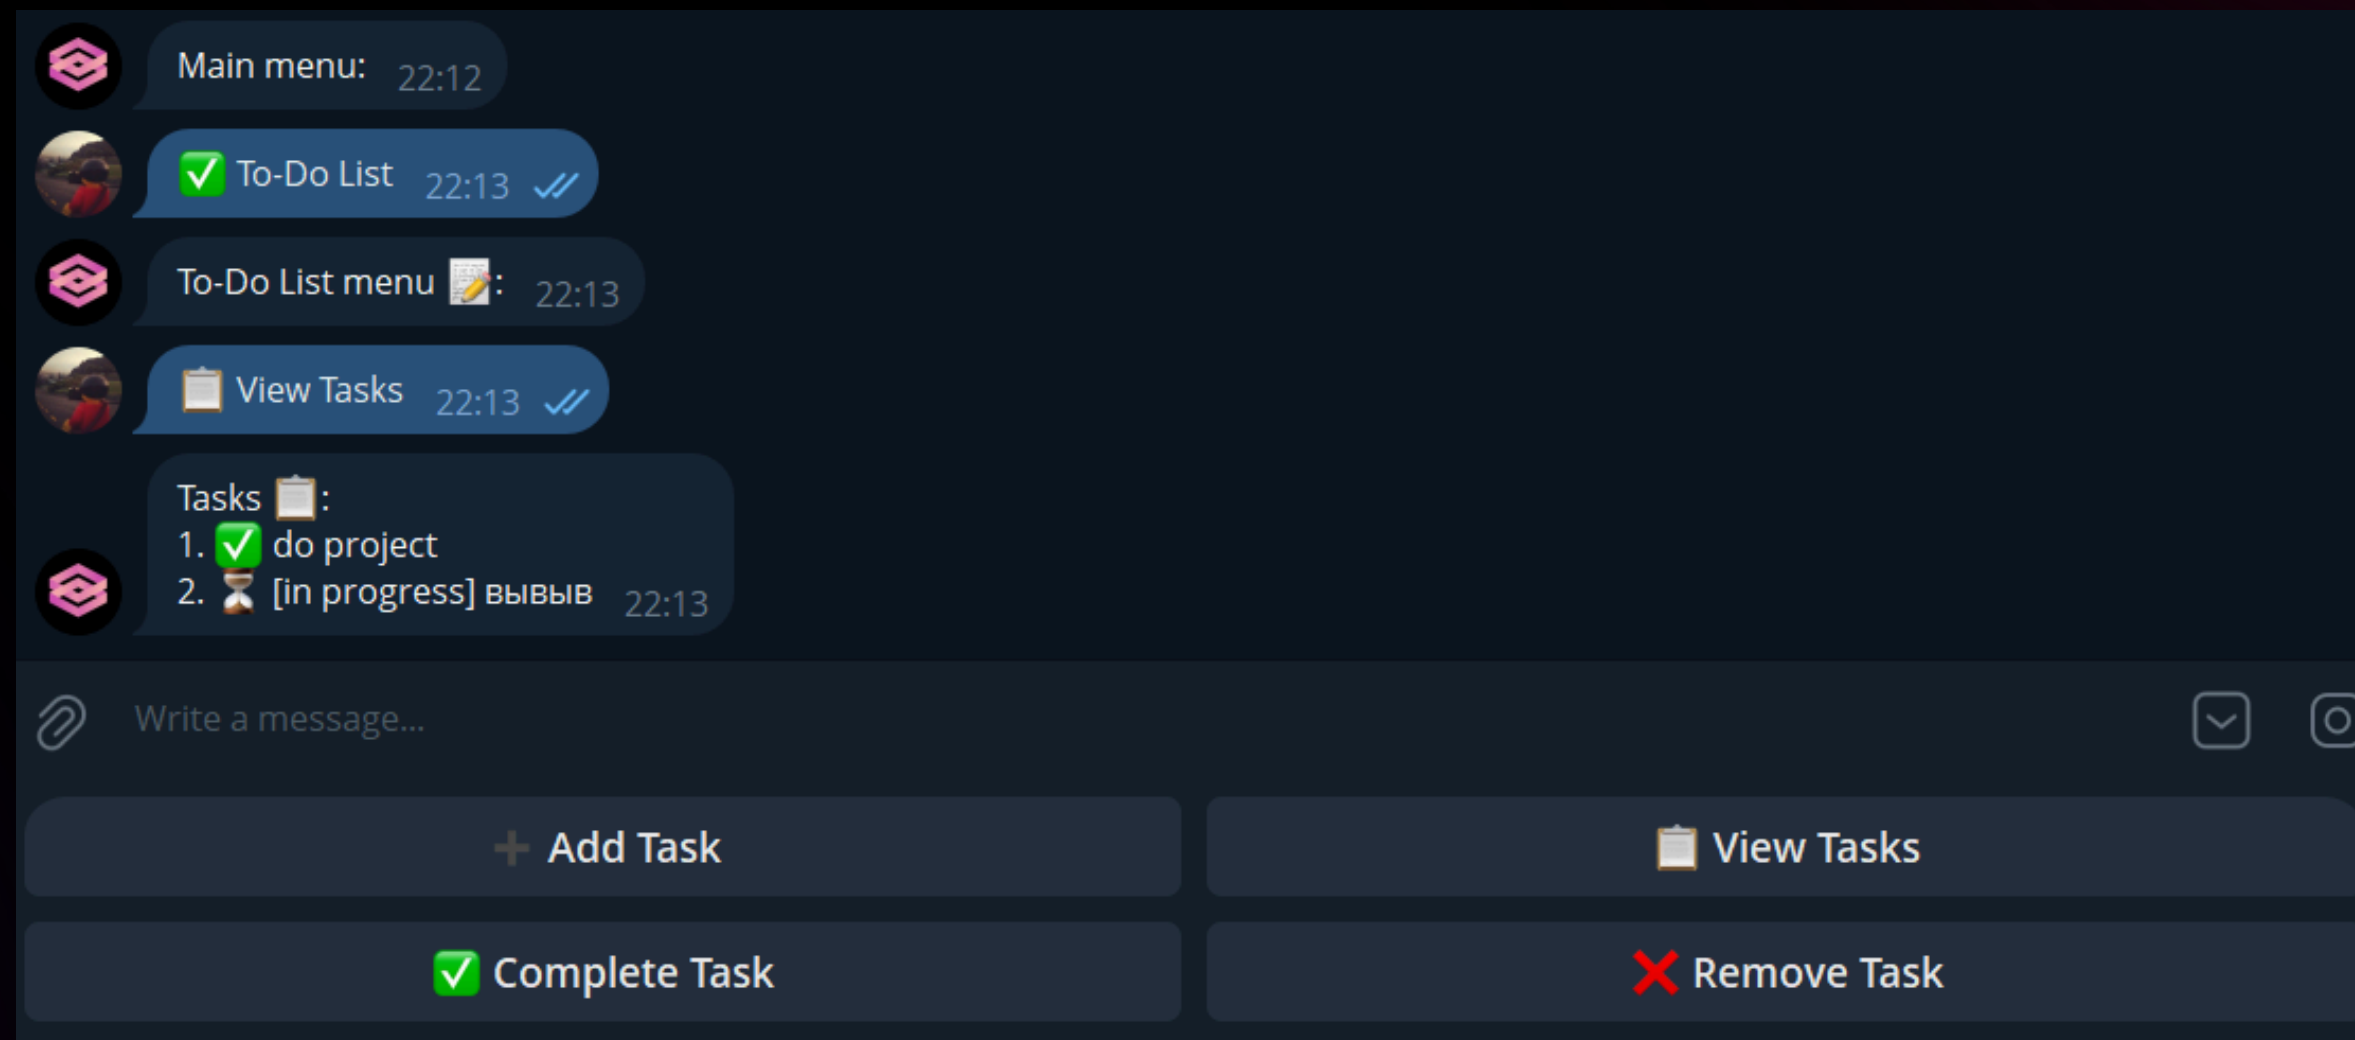

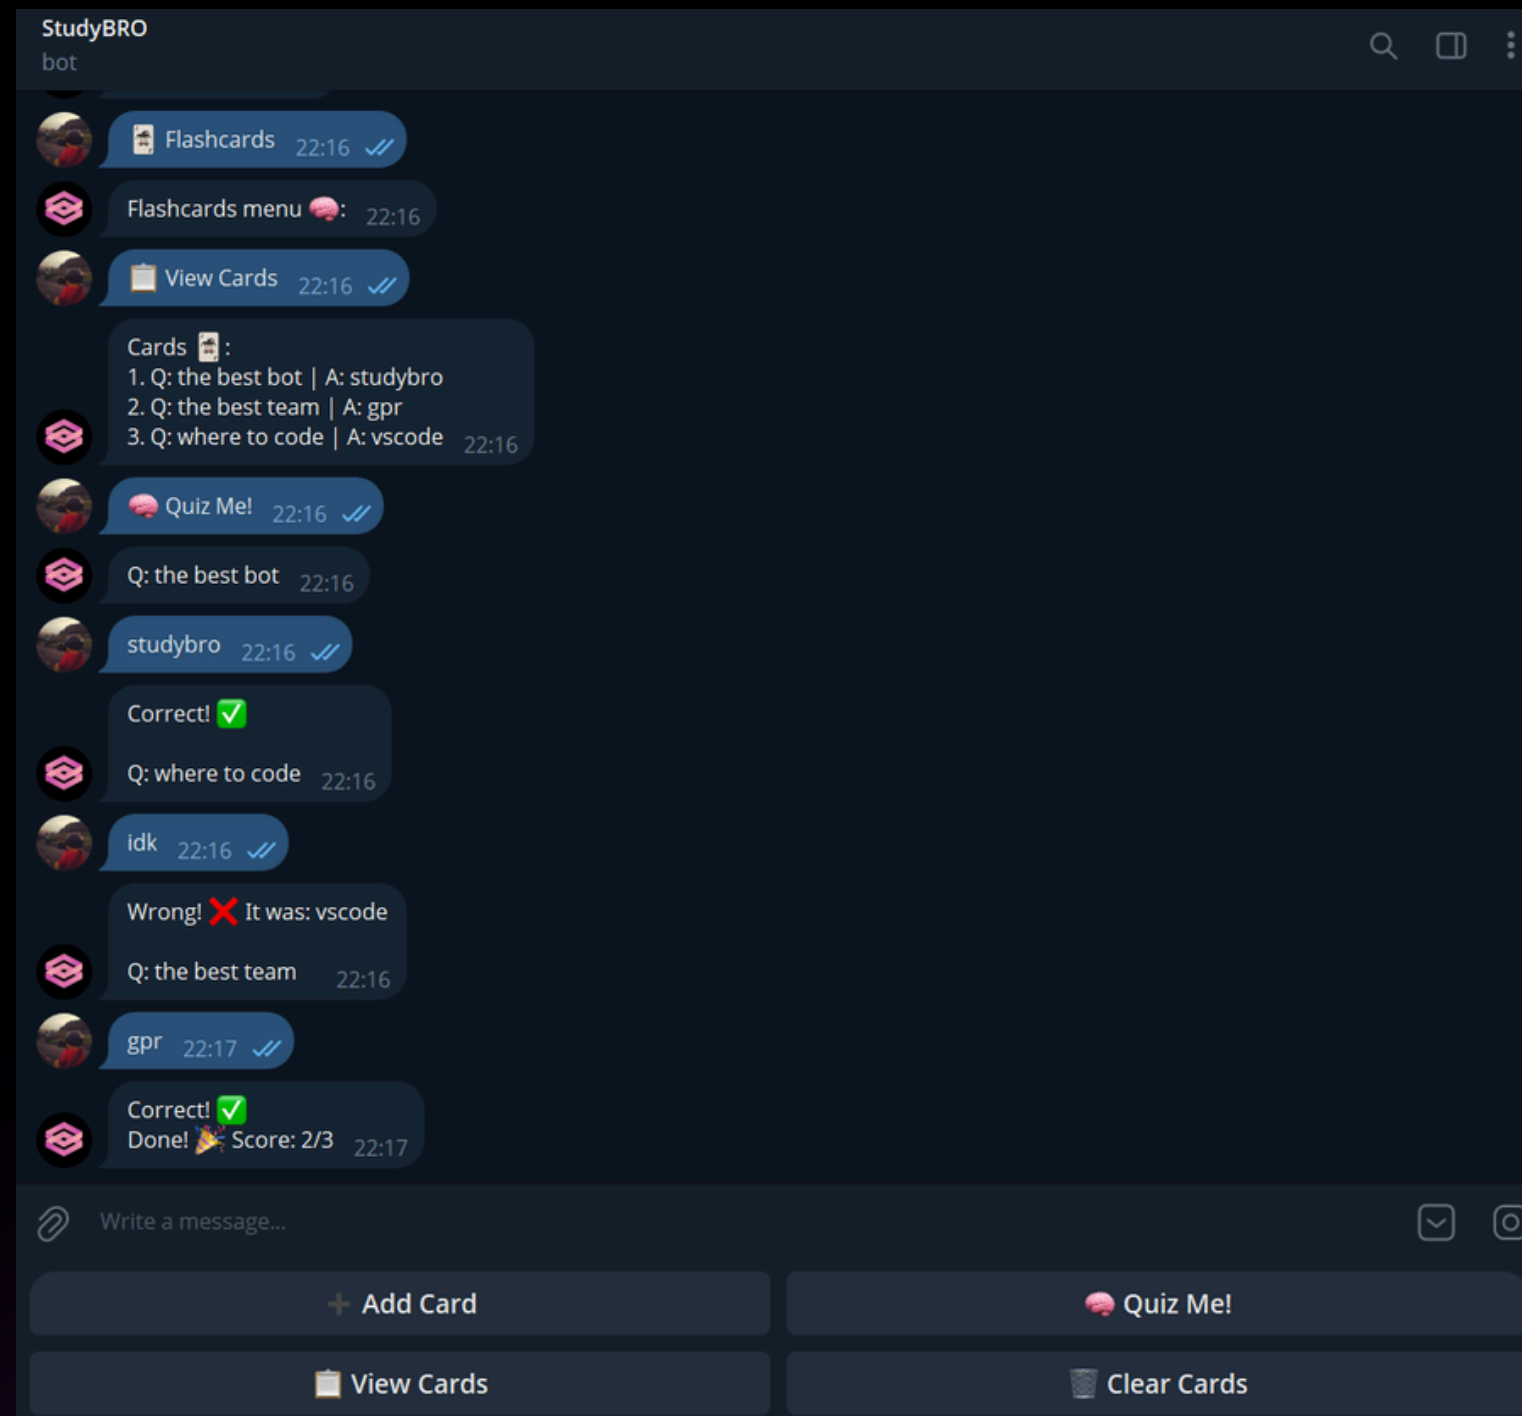

The screenshot shows a mobile app interface for a 'Deadline Tracker'. At the top, there's a header with a calendar icon, the text 'Deadline Tracker', the time '22:09', and a checkmark. Below this is a 'Deadline Tracker menu' with an alarm clock icon and the time '22:09'. The main content area shows a list of deadlines under the heading 'Deadlines ⌚:'. The first item is '1. 📌 program - 2026-05-11' with the time '22:09'. Below the list is a text input field with the placeholder 'Write a message...'. At the bottom, there are four buttons: '+ Add Deadline', 'View Deadlines' (with a clipboard icon), 'Remove Deadline' (with a red X icon), and 'Back' (with a left arrow icon and the word 'BACK' in small letters).

To-Do List

Add tasks, mark them complete, or delete them. Each task shows its status — done or in progress — so you always know what's left.

Flashcards

Add cards with a term and definition, review them anytime, or start a quiz. The bot randomly selects cards and tests you in a different order every time. Clear all cards when you're done with a topic and start fresh.

Challenges Faced

- Managing multiple users at the same time, each person needs their own independent session so nothing overlaps
- Preserving user states across conversation steps, the bot always needs to know where exactly each user is in the flow
- Keeping callback logic organized, as features grew the button and menu handling got complex fast

Future Improvements

- Database integration, right now data lives in memory so adding a database means nothing gets lost between sessions
- Reminders & notifications, the bot will actually ping you before a deadline hits instead of waiting for you to check
- AI-powered study assistant, answer questions, suggest study plans, adapt to each user personally
- Data persistence, your tasks, flashcards and deadlines stay saved even after the bot restarts

Thank You!
